LATEST NEWS

Grants and Offers

Thuringian Research Award for Stefan R. Schweinberger

The Thuringian Research Prize (Thüringer Forschungspreis) 2009 was awarded to Stefan R. Schweinberger, Jürgen M. Kaufmann and Holger Wiese from the Department of General Psychology and Cognitive Neuroscience. They received the prize in the category basic research for their investigations of description and analysis of neuronal correlates of face recognition. Stefan R. Schweinberger is professor for general psychology and cognitive neuroscience at the FSU Jena and faculty member of the GSBC.

Honorary Doctorate awarded to Werner Güth

On February 16th, the Eberhardt Karls University of Tuebingen awarded Prof. Dr. Werner Güth a honorary doctorate. In her welcome address, Prof. Dr. Kerstin Pull, Dean of the Faculty for Economics and Business Administration, emphasized the impact of Werner Güth's work especially on interdisciplinary research. His research mirrors the close link between economics and management as advanced by the Faculty in Tuebingen. In particular she underlined the impact of his work for these two domains of economic science and furthermore across disciplines. The dean paid also tribute to Werner Güth as a founder and prominent research representative uniting economic and behavioral science. The laudation was delivered by Prof. Dr. Manfred Stadler. In his speech he particularly pointed out the many joint research projects carried out by Kerstin Pull, Manfred Stadler and Werner Güth and various other members of both institutions.

New Project by Rainer K. Silbereisen: Demography and Democracy - Territorial Levels of Demographic Change, Individual Levels of Developmental Assets and Community-Based Potentials for Civic Engagement and Recruitment of Political Personnel (together with Everhard Holtmann (University of Halle))

The aim of the new project is to investigate the relationship between disadvantaged developmental contexts (regarding demographic and social-economic characteristics), individual perceptions of developmental resources of the inhabitants, and their consequences for civic engagement and political involvement. As a consequence, regional-specific recommendations will be given to promote participation, in particular in young adults. This project is funded by the Innovation Fund of the SFB 580 aiming at the elaboration of inter-disciplinary research projects.

New GSBC-Post-Docs

Alaina Brenick

Alaina completed her Ph.D. in Human Development at the University of Maryland in December 2009. Her research has focused on the role of identity, stereotypic expectations, and intergroup conflict in children and adolescents' social and moral reasoning regarding intergroup relations, particularly among youth who come from groups with histories of inequality and conflict. Her dissertation examined the role of cultural identity and intergroup contact on adolescents' evaluations of Arab-Jewish friendships.

While at the University of Maryland, Alaina conducted research investigating children and adolescents' evaluations of intergroup relations in the United States, Colombia, and the Middle-East. As part of her post-doctoral work at the GSBC she will investigate the intergroup dynamics between native and immigrant populations in Germany and Israel.

Maria Pavlova

My specialization is developmental psychology, and I received both my diploma (2001) and my doctoral degree (2007) at the Developmental Psychology Department, Faculty of Psychology, Lomonosov Moscow State University. Before coming to Jena, I worked as a lecturer at the Moscow City University of Psychology and Education. In 2008, I received a scholarship from the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) for a six-month research stay at the Center for Applied Developmental Science (CADS), University of Jena, and now I come to Jena as a postdoctoral fellow at the GSBC (since February 2010).

My doctoral dissertation concerned interrelationships between different domains of development in adolescence (i.e., social, cognitive, and self). As a result of my stay at the CADS and with the help of my co-authors, I accomplished a study on early, on-time, and late transitions to behavioural autonomy in adolescence and their associations with subsequent psychosocial adjustment in adulthood. Currently I am investigating potential explanations of the age-related gap in subjective well-being between adults (age 18–42) that have achieved a certain normative status (i.e., employment, steady partnership, and parenthood) and those who have not. At the GSBC, I will continue studying adult development, with more focus on its socio-economic context, and I am very open to interdisciplinary collaboration.

New GSBC-Fellows

Chad Baum

I am originally from Dallas, Texas in the United States of America. In 2002, I was awarded a McNair Scholarship to attend the University of South Carolina. During my time at USC, I spent three semesters studying abroad: at the Kansai Gaidai University in Japan in 2004, and then at the Universidad de Complutense in Madrid, Spain from 2004-2005. In 2006, I graduated Summa Cum Laude with a Bachelor of Science in Economics and a minor in Japanese.

The next year, I moved to Australia and attended the Australian National University. In 2008, I attained a masters degree in International and Developmental Economics, also having studied time-series econometrics, public policy and environmental economics. I also have experience as an English-as-a-Second-Language instructor, including teaching English grammar and pronunciation.

I have now been studying at the GSBC since January. During the next three years, I intend to broaden my understanding of economic theory, especially in institutional and ecological economics. Inspired by the work of Friedrich Hayek, among others, I plan to research the growing trend toward libertarianism and decentralization within modern society, and pursue a thesis project that highlights the impact of these changes on economic development, especially in relation to environmental sustainability and in pursuit of a contextual approach to economic theory.

Fernando Campos Medina

Territorial Speed Up, the revolutionary process of construction of relevant geographies - this research proposal begins with the very general idea that the social acceleration process can be understood in late modernity not only in its temporal dimension but also in a spatial dimension.

There are many concepts coming from the critical geography or the sociological neo-Marxist tradition, seeking to build a bridge between the temporal and the spatial dimension in contemporary society, e.g.

time-space compression, time-space distantiation, spatio-temporal matrices of globalization, historically specific territorialisation and rescaling.

I start from the premise that the concepts of time-space compression and historically specific round of territorialisation are outstanding contributions to the social theory but they are insufficient to describe and understand the revolutionary transformation in the organization of space in contemporary societies due to the social process of acceleration as is conceptualized by Hartmut Rosa in the dimension of: technological acceleration, acceleration of social change, acceleration of the pace of life.

My research interest, it is to develop a theoretical and methodological approach connecting the ideas of social acceleration to the spatial dimension, through the study of social process of governance arrangement and local networks, highlighting the complexity and the institutional desynchronization in regional and metropolitan contexts.

Hana Doležalová

I am a PhD student at GSBC since January 2010. Previously I was studying at Masaryk University in Brno in the Czech Republic. In 2005 I completed my bachelor degree in religious studies and sociology and in 2007 I received my diploma in sociology. During my graduate studies I developed a strong interest in a qualitative research of contemporary religiosity, mainly its non-church forms. My main spheres of interest are sociology of religion, body and identity.

My dissertation will undertake qualitative research of beliefs and bodily practices in New Age spirituality. I will deal with the question: how New Age practitioners relate to their Self, their body and to others, examining the role of individualism and collectivism in New Age's holistic spiritual milieu. More generally, will explore how do people in contemporary individualized society relate to their communities.

Felix Hussenöder

My name is Felix Hussenöder and I started working at the Graduate School "Human Behaviour in Social and Economic Change" (GSBC) in January 2010. After studies in Germany (FAU-Nürnberg) and Spain (Universitat de les Illes Balears) I acquired my diploma in psychology at the FSU Jena (topic: Diary Test of Explicit Memory – realistic memory testing considering the interaction of anxiety and coping style).

For my dissertation "members of social networks" I will explore the functions of social networks for their members in the context of their personalities.

Sheriffa Mahama

I started in February as one of the doctoral students of the Jena Graduate School – Human Development in Social and Economic Change. My background studies have been in Psychology. I received my bachelors as well as a master's degree from the University of Ghana in 2007 where I was also employed as an assistant lecturer.

Currently, I am researching into social change effects on family and kinship cultural behavior and the interplay with individual resources and coping strategies across the lifespan. So far, I love the city of Jena and have met some amazing and kind people and I am looking forward to my work and stay in Jena.

Dario Montero

I was born in Santiago de Chile, where I studied sociology and philosophy at the Universidad Católica de Chile. In 2002 I studied for one semester at the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid (Spain) as an exchange student, and then I spent the rest of that year in England doing volunteer work. After completing my studies in Chile I came to Germany in 2006 to pursue the Master of Public Policy (MPP) at the University of Erfurt, a two-year program in political science and public administration.

In September 2009 I began writing my dissertation in Jena under the supervision of Prof. Hartmut Rosa (Sociology) on the methodology of the social sciences, in particular, on the role that hermeneutics has played in the foundation of the social sciences and the consequences that this methodological approach entails for the explanation of social change. My dissertation focuses on the work of Max Weber and Charles Taylor. Since January 2010 I am doctoral fellow at the Jena Graduate School "Human Behaviour in Social and Economic Change" (GSBC).

Maria Skivko

In 2008 I finished Samara State University (Russia), sociological faculty. My specialization was sociology of communication, that I finished with final research work "Designing of consuming standards in men's' and women's' magazines". In this work I investigated how the standards of consuming today might be constructing. For improve my practical skills in sociology and enlarging research experience I continued my education in European Humanities University in Vilnius (Lithuania) and finished there the program of Cultural studies, specialization of Visual and cultural studies. The field of my research projects was consumption in the culture sphere and the functioning of creative industries, that's why the theme of my Masters' Thesis was "Cultural consumption and event-tourism in the contemporary city".

From January 2010 I started my PhD-study at the Jena Graduate School "Human Behaviour in Social and Economic Change". In my PhD project I'm planning to research the phenomenon of trend-setting and the trendsetters as a special social group.

Always ready to study, to develop, to create ;)

Philip Hiroshi Ueno

I was born and raised in Brazil though my parents come from Japan. In the last years I lived in Berlin where I completed my Master in International and Development Economics at the Berlin University of Applied Sciences. Prior to that, I have lived for a year in Hyderabad (India) where I was project consultant at a Corporate Social Responsibility Foundation dealing with urban development.

In Brazil, I completed my bachelor in Public Policy at Fundação Getulio Vargas and worked for three years in Instituto de Tecnologia Social, a NGO that develops that deals with use of technologies for Social Inclusion with support of Brazilian Science and Technology Ministry.

My research interests span from topics like the role, origins and classification of Non Governmental Organisations (NGOs), Social Economy and Appropriate Technology to issues on Development Economics and Innovation Policy. Here in GSBC, I will research on the technology policy in Brazil. As for the hobbies, swimming, cycling, cooking and travelling are my favourite ones. I am very pleased to take part of GSBC and hope to meet and collaborate with you.

New EIC-Fellows

Levan Bzhalava

I studied development economics at Warsaw University. My master thesis illustrated relationships among socio-economic conditions, knowledge diffusion and labor productivity. After graduating from the university I began working as a chief of the Economic Development Department of Bolnisi Municipality in Georgia.

Since February 2010 I am a PhD student at Jena Graduate School "The Economics of Innovative Change". Consumer behavior, market demand and innovation systems are the areas of my interest where I would like to develop a PhD project. In particular, my purpose is to study demand-side factors of an economy, how agents (consumer and entrepreneur) actively shape a market demand as an outcome of interaction and learning processes and the role of institutional framework in an evolutionary process.

Mingdi Xiao

In February 2010, I started working as a PhD student at the Jena Graduate Program "The Economics of Innovative Change". Before joining the group I studied Finance at the University of St Andrews as well as the University Utrecht. In November 2009, I received my Master of Science degree in Finance (M.Sc Finance).

The focus of my final thesis was on the relationship between Entrepreneurs and Investors in the venture capital investments in the UK high-technology industries. My interest places on financing of innovations, entrepreneurship, venture capital investment, and that is also where I plan to complete my PhD thesis. I am looking forward to participate in this interesting and challenging program.

3RD IMPRS THESIS WORKSHOP

The 3rd IMPRS Thesis workshop was held at castle Ringberg, conference site of the Max Planck Society, from February 15 till 19. The purpose of this Workshop is to report on the actual state of the PhD project of all enrolled IMPRS doctoral students. Therefore, the IMPRS PhD students from the Max Planck Institutes in Jena, Berlin, and Bonn as well as from the University of Jena met.

29 presentations in the three fields the fields the IMPRS Uncertainty combines (Economics, Law, and Psychology) were given in three days:

- Matthias Uhl: Weak Paternalism - An Experimental Analysis

- Charlotte Klempt: Committing to incentives: Should the Decision to Sanction be revealed or hidden?
- Stefan Tontrup: Studies on Process Fairness
- Michael Kurschilgen: Fairness Ex Ante and Ex Post - the Benefits of a "Bestseller Paragraph" in Media Markets
- Fabian Winter: Remarks on the dynamics of normative conflict and some preliminary results
- Astrid Buba: Being in balance gets you rich!? About the relationship of emotional stability and other core self-evaluations with wage expectations and competitiveness
- Nikolai Bodemer: Evaluating risk communication: Towards a theoretical framework for understanding and supporting patient's bounded rationality
- Robert Böhm: Intragroup discussion and interindividual-intergroup discontinuity: A test of two explanations
- Katharina Eckartz: Innovation in the Lab
- Christiane Ehses-Friedrich: Aspects of Strategic Information Transmission
- Juliane Kämmer: Heuristics in Group Decision Making
- Florian Artinger: Pricing Heuristics, The role of empathy and theory of mind in simple games
- Hannes Koppel: Keep the track!? An experimental investigation of milestones in a collective-risk social dilemma
- Christoph March: Behavioral Approaches to Social Learning
- Azzurra Ruggeri: The development of our Adaptive Toolbox across the life-span: step one - the process of generating alternatives
- Lauri Säskvuori: On interdependent groups with little ado about the neural basis of property
- Jenny Vollstorf: The role of gist-based strategies in the emergence of cooperation
- Georg von Heusinger: Does the Order of Contributions matter? Real-time Provision of Threshold Public Goods.
- Johannes Weisser: Leading by Words: A Voluntary Contribution Experiment With One-Way Communication
- Jan Multmeier: The adaptivity of judgments by availability
- Katrin Schmelz: Three studies to investigate control aversion
- Gaoneng Yu: Effect of Punishment Strategies on Bribery Decision-making
- Sebastian Krügel: Miscalibration and the Volume of Trade: Preliminary Results
- Laxmi Natarajan: Efficiency versus Sufficiency in Startup Size Decisions
- Ulrike Vollstädt: Bargaining with couples - preliminary results
- Jieyao Ding: Temporal Bracketing of Choice Discrepancies between Simultaneous and Sequential Choice
- Nadine Fleischhut: Moral Judgments under Risk and Uncertainty
- Linan Diao: Do name recognition and familiarity play a role when investor make portfolio decisions: An experimental Examination
- Georg Zaklan: Social interaction in public goods with many agents

At the end of the workshop, some of the IMPRS students received certificates, confirming that they fulfilled all the IMPRS Uncertainty requirements. After scientific work, students and faculty engaged in table tennis, chess, or other games. A highlight was a guided tour through the castle where all got insights in the history and architecture of this place.

The unanimous consent after these days was: "It was great to be here!"

ANNOUNCEMENTS

GSBC Schools Day

This year the Schools Day of the Graduate School "Human Behaviour in Social and Economic Change" will take place on April 15th in the Senatssaal of the University's Main Building. As in the last year we want to welcome our new GSBC fellows officially. Our postdoctoral students will present their research projects by a poster session and will give a short introduction. Please find the preliminary programme below.

14.00	Welcome Speech	Klaus Dicke (Rector, FSU Jena) and Uwe Cantner
14.10	Getting familiar with the GSBC and building a research profile	Jenny Block and Leonhard Lades
14.20	Introduction of the GSBC postdoctoral students I	Alaina Brenick, Alexia Gaudeul and Elena Semenova
14.50	Coffee Break
15.10	Introduction of the GSBC postdoctoral students II	Maria Pavlova, Caterina Gianetti and Katharina Stöbel
15.40	Coffee Break
16.00	Reception of the new GSBC fellows

Please see <http://www.gsbc.uni-jena.de/index.php?id=13> to get up-to-date information about the GSBC Schools Day. All GSBC members and guests are cordially invited!

GSBC-BBS

In the following term we will continue the GSBC-Brown-Bag-Seminar-Series. Due to that the fellows and the faculty of the GSBC invited interesting guests or will give lectures about their current research results. The GSBC-BBS takes place every Wednesday at 12.00 p.m. in Room 102, Bachstraße 18k, Jena.

Please see <http://gk.wiwi.uni-jena.de/index.php?SEM=GSBCB> to get up-to-date information about the GSBC-BBS.

Ph.D. Workshop in Developmental Psychology, "Development as Action in Context", June 16-18, 2010, Altes Schloss Dornburg (near Jena), Germany

On initiative of the Developmental Division (Fachgruppe Entwicklungspsychologie) of the German Psychological Association (DGPs), Rainer Silbereisen invites doctoral students

(i.e., young scientists working on their Ph.D.) in developmental psychology to participate in a 3-day workshop in June 2010. Participants will work with national and international experts representing outstanding research in developmental science. To date, these include Lieselotte Ahnert (University of Vienna, Austria), Jacquelynne Eccles (University of Michigan, USA), Alexandra Freund (University of Zurich, Switzerland), Marcus Hasselhorn (University of Goettingen, Germany), Ingrid Schoon (University of London, UK), Laurence Steinberg (Temple University, USA), Clemens Tesch-Römer (German Center of Gerontology, Berlin, Germany), and Alexander von Eye (Michigan State University, USA).

Applications should be sent to Karina Weichold ([karina.weichold\[at\]uni-jena.de](mailto:karina.weichold[at]uni-jena.de)) before March 30, 2010. For further information on the faculty and the workshop please check our website <http://www2.uni-jena.de/svw/devpsy/news/2007/phdworkshop2010.html>.

International Conference on Discrimination and Tolerance between Social Groups

The DFG-Research Unit on Discrimination and Tolerance in Intergroup Relations will be hosting an International Conference in Jena from June 30th to July 3rd, 2010.

Understanding the social phenomena of discrimination and tolerance in relations between social groups has challenged psychological theory and research for many decades. It is the aim of this conference to cover a broad range of research perspectives and to bring together researchers from different areas of psychology to stimulate exchange and cross-fertilization between these perspectives.

Researchers will present and discuss research and ideas from different angles, be it social or personality psychology, developmental or educational psychology, using a basic or applied focus on the issue. Contributions will cover antecedents and consequences of discrimination and tolerance as well as its underlying cognitive and motivational processes either at the individual or collective level.

As an eminent part of the scientific programme, three internationally highly distinguished scholars accepted our invitation for keynote lectures:

- John Dovidio (Yale University, USA)
- Klaus Fiedler (Universität Heidelberg, Germany)
- Melanie Killen (University of Maryland, USA)

Beside its main focus on current research work, the conference in its entirety is projected to also target practitioners as well as the interested public and therefore consists of

1. public panel discussion (in German), June 30th, 2010
2. scientific programme comprising talks and a poster session (in English), July 1st and 2nd, 2010
3. workshops on applied issues (in German), July 3rd, 2010

Furthermore, previous to the conference a course of public guest lectures on the issue of social discrimination and tolerance will be arranged.

For further information please see: <http://discrimination-tolerance.squarespace.com/>.

GSBC Summer School on Identity, Innovation and Aging, 19th-26th September, 2010, Castle Oppurg, Thuringia, Germany

The first GSBC Summer School is scheduled from September 19th until September 26th at the Castle Oppurg in Thuringia. The focus of the Summer School will be on three special topics from the field Human Behavior in Social and Economic Change, namely Identity (under supervision by Amélie Mummendey), innovation (coordinated by Uwe Cantner) and aging (under the guidance of Rainer K. Silbereisen). All doctoral students can apply for participation. The announcement will be published soon on the GSBC website (www.gsbc.uni-jena.de).

GK-EIC - IMPRS Summer School 2010 (IMPreSS 2010)

The fourth GK - IMPRS Summer School (IMPreSS 2010) is scheduled from July 25th until August 20th, 2010 at Bachstraße 18 as well as at the Max Planck Institute of Economics, Jena. From July 25th until August 8th 2010, the 4th Jena Summer Academy on "Innovation and Uncertainty" will be jointly hosted by the DFG Research Training Group "The Economics of Innovative Change" (GK-EIC) and the International Max Planck Research School on Adapting Behavior in a Fundamentally Uncertain World (IMPRS).

The focus of this year's edition will again lie on foundations of (innovative) behavior, entrepreneurship, the generation of innovations and their diffusion, the change of regional and sectoral structures caused by innovations, the role of the demand side in this context, as well as the political management of change. Just like in the last three years, the IMPRS Summer School will continue in the second and the third week of August to cover a number of specific topics related to how subjects behave under fundamental uncertainty. The IMPRS Uncertainty Summer School aims at stimulating the scientific discourse on decision making under uncertainty between economists, psychologists and legal scholars.
